

PRESENTATION FORMATS

Debate: A structured, moderated exchange where two or more speakers take opposing sides on a relevant issue. Attendees gain insights into different perspectives and are encouraged to evaluate both arguments critically.

Fireside Chat: An informal, conversational interview typically involves a moderator and a guest speaker, often a thought leader or industry expert. The relaxed setting allows for deep dives into personal experiences, insights, and expertise in a more engaging and relatable manner.

Interactive/Demos: Hands-on, participatory sessions that involve live demonstrations, simulations, or activities. Attendees engage directly with the material, gaining practical skills or firsthand experience with new tools, technologies, or methodologies.

Lecture: Sessions led by a solo presenter or co-presenters sharing best practices, forward-looking strategies, and resources to help attendees advance their work. These sessions typically include structured content delivery, often with Q&A opportunities.

Lightning Presentations: Fast-paced sessions where speakers deliver concise, high-impact presentations within a limited time, usually 5-10 minutes each. These brief talks focus on key takeaways and are designed to deliver quick bursts of information.

Panel Discussion: Guided conversations with three or more thought leaders from various industries who lend their expertise as panelists. A moderator facilitates the discussion, focusing on diverse viewpoints and engaging the audience with interactive Q&A segments.
